

5	Physically hurtful or threatening behavior. These are behaviors that are against the law. For example, hitting someone or biting them. You will get fired from a job, suspended from school and maybe even go to jail if you engage in such behavior.
4	Scary Behavior This could include swearing or staring. You would probably get fired from a job for this behavior or suspended from school. This behavior could also end up being against the law.
3	Odd Behavior This behavior could make other people uncomfortable. It might include sitting too close to someone or putting your face too close to someone who wasn't expecting it. It could also include showing up at a party that you weren't invited to. You might get fired from a job because this behavior makes other people nervous. This is not against the law.
2	Reasonable Behavior This type of behavior is like going to a party you have been invited to and talking to someone you know. It might be playing a planned board game with someone, working with someone in a group at school or eating lunch together. People are enjoying each other's company. This is where people get to know each other better.
1	Very informal social behavior This is like waving to someone or smiling to someone in the hallway at school. If you just say "Hi" and keep on walking, that is also a 1. This is totally O.K. and is the way most people first notice each other.